

Full Bio

Death Plant is a very unique trio residing in Southern Oregon. With a wide array of rock styles mixed into one loud, ska-alternative-pop-metal amalgamation, they have waited until the right moment to explode on the scene and that time is now!

Originally called Pageant of the Transmundane, the acoustic duo of Anthony and Mel started playing music together a couple of years into their relationship. They started with common covers and inevitably Anthony began writing a wide assortment of music. Needing words to bring the first song to life, he turned to Mel the wordsmith. Both have since contributed major music and lyrical parts while creating, but their performance was missing the explosion of drums, thus they embarked on a quest to find the perfect drummer.

After a some decent auditions they refined their search and found Moreno. It took one song to know that this was the man for the job. So as to not seem too thirsty, Anthony and Mel set up one more audition to be sure. After Moreno decimated the competition for the second time Anthony got on one knee and asked him to dedicate his sticks to the Death Plant cause.

With Moreno rocking the rhythm section, their live performance transformed from acoustic duo to a full electric power trio. With the sweet sound of complex vocal harmonies, running bass lines, big dirty guitars, and wall shaking drums, Death Plant is invading your homes, phones, stereos, and minds!

Church of Rock radio show feature on KSKQ

Rev Derek: My friends, I have something special. They're a band from the Medford/Ashland, OR area and they're new and they're called Death Plant. And they are right this very minute filming their first music video over at the Phoenix Clubhouse in Phoenix, OR, so if you're cruising around Southern Oregon and you want to be in a music video it's open to the public! So stop by The Phoenix

Clubhouse if you're interested in doing that. My friends, let's go ahead and play a song by this band from southern Oregon called Death Plant. This is track number 9 from their new album and the song is called Holly, by Death Plant. Right here at the Church of Rock on KSKQ.

**Plays Holly****

Rev. Derek: Very quirky, very nice, great production, good band. It's Death Plant.

Sister Tracy: Yeah! I wasn't expecting them to sound like that!

Rev. Derek: I know, right!?

Sister Tracy: At all. I was like, "I don't know, Death Plant?" I was expecting some *ROAR**ROAR* you know? Kind of... *laughs***

Rev Derek: I didn't know what to expect either and somebody gave me their CD. And I'm like... I'm all about supporting local rock here in Southern Oregon so I'm really happy to be able to play it!

Sister Tracy: Absolutely!

Rev Derek: So yeah, Death Plant!

Lattitude 42 radio show on KSKQ with Carson featuring Anthony and Moreno

Excerpt 1

Carson: How many musicians are in Death Plant?

Anthony: We have a total of three. We've got Mel, she's our lead vocalist and rhythm guitarist and then, you know, we've got Moreno (drums) and myself (lead bass, side vocals)

Moreno: A Power trio.

Carson: I was gonna use those words! I was gonna ask, do you consider yourself a power trio?

Anthony: I answer questions around them, I don't answer them directly. *laughs***

Carson: What makes a trio power trio?

Anthony: how heavy you are?

Moreno: Yeah, and it's like, if you're kind of playing as much as you can get away with on your instrument, in a way, without crowding everybody out, you know? Everyone is giving like...

Carson: The amount of, so okay, so I'd consider Rush a power trio. 'Cause they..

Anthony: Absolutely!

Moreno: Tightness.

Carson: It's like, three people make that much depth of sound!?

Anthony: Exactly!

Casron: Okay, So you're a power trio.

Anthony: Mhm. I'd like to say so.

Carson: That's cool!
